He loved entertaining and spending time with his children and grandchildren. He was an avid golfer. Whether playing with customers, family, friends or alone; he was in his element on the golf course. Deteriorating health didn't allow him much play in recent years; but rest assured that if there was tournament on television, he was watching and/or following it.

Doug was in the Material handling business for more than 45 years; his experience was immeasurable. For the last 23 years he worked for Cascade Corporation and took immense pride in his job and Company; but most of all in the friends he made performing his job. He regarded many of his co-workers and customers as family. It was this pride, and these friendships, that drove him to fight his illness.

Doug loved being outdoors; from boating and flying in his earlier years to manicuring and maintaining his backyard oasis more recently.

He fought a long battle with AML, Acute Myeloid Leukemia. MD Anderson Cancer Center became home to him. He spent the last days of his life at home surrounded by friends and family.
