

Humberto Quintana MD

January 4, 2017

Humberto “Bert” Quintana, MD, 68, beloved physician, husband, father, and educator, lover of horses, sailboats, and all Southwest, was born on December 6, 1948 in Havana, Cuba, and passed away on January 4, 2016 in The Woodlands, Texas. Quintana served as the Max Sugar Distinguished Professor of Child Psychiatry at Louisiana State University Health and Sciences Center (LSUHSC). He began at LSU in July 1998 as Associate Professor of Psychiatry and as the Child Psychiatry Residency Training Director and advanced to Professor of Psychiatry and Director of Child Psychopharmacology Research in 2005. Throughout his distinguished career, he received multiple research awards and grants to conduct child psychiatry research, and throughout his tenure at LSU, he continued multiple psychopharmacology research programs involving children and adolescents, including ADHD and Bipolar Disorder. He was an expert in pediatric psychopharmacology with severely mentally ill children and adolescents. Upon his retirement in 2013, he and his wife started a private practice in the greater Woodlands area. Most recently, he was developing a nationwide telemedicine program with colleagues. He will be sorely missed for his experience and expertise in the field and his love and empathy for his patients and their families. He is survived by his wife, Josefina R. Duran-Quintana and his daughters, Christina Quintana, Rebecca Quintana, and her husband, Lee I. Williams.

DR. Quintana's family will be having a Memorial Service later in the year.
