hunting and fishing, especially in South Texas. Jim enjoyed the outdoors and the freedom of travel. He enjoyed his job with The Port of Houston Authority which allowed him to visit beautiful places such as France, Finland, Poland, and one of his favorite destinations the Beaches of Normandy. He cherished time spent with his beloved family and friends, especially the precious time dotting on his grandchildren. Jim fought a courageous battle with his lifelong health issues with the utmost grace and courage, he never once complained or had a negative outlook. He believed in playing the cards he was dealt. In his daughter's words, "he was the strongest and bravest man she has ever know." Jim has lived a full life filled with love, mercy, and faith in his everlasting Father.
