Joe built a successful career in sales, a field where he thrived for the next two decades in Houston. His sales career began with Finger Furniture, often times the Salesman of the month. He then decided to open his own Furniture

“ Joe T. Was a wonderful man. He could take a current event and make it more interesting . I am truly blessed to have spent some memorable time with him. I remember that he and I attended a funeral together. When we went to pay our respects he broke down and cried. I remember him telling me that he was a big tough Marine and crying like a baby. He had a big heart. May he rest in peace.
