“ Marge and I truly enjoyed each other’s company and enthusiastically looked forward to sharing her memories each time she came to see my sister and I in Charlotte. She was born fourteen years before I was, so I hardly knew her before she left home to be married in 1945. Each time she came she shared memories of her life from those early days up to up to the time dad died in 1961 and I added many of these memories to our written family history. I don’t know what death brings but if it be eternal sleep, I see nothing but good. Rest in peace my dear sister, I love you.
