“ Our brother Bob was a card when growing up. One time he wanted to see if our dog Smokey was a good watch dog. He put a blanket over his head and hid under our lemon tree. He had Dixie run down the drive way. As Dixie ran by, he jumped out and grabbed her. Smokey went right after him and only stopped when he realized who it was. Bob and I used to play blackjack. Of course he won as I never asked him to see his cards (I was always too trusting and still am). As a teenager in the 50s, he dressed like the guys in Grease (rolled up white tee shirts and jeans). When Loretta and Dixie met with Gene Autry (as stunt riders), Bob and Jack were supposed to watch me at home (I was 5). Even though I was told that I could not go, I hid in the back of the station wagon. I never spoke a word (even when my favorite Bubblegum was being offered). My mom saw me as she walked past the car. She made me stay right where I was (I only wanted to meet Gene Autry). When we returned home, she asked Jack and Bob if I had behaved. They both answered yes. LOL. They never even realized that I was not at home. Both Jack and Bob would hang out at Mike's pizza on Van Nuys Blvd. Bob frequented Bob's Big Boy on Riverside Drive in Burbank. It is still in business. Hey Bob I treated Melody and Monica to a Bob's Big Boy not too long ago. It's is nothing like the 50's Bob's. One time he demanded that Loretta and I get him some Kool Aid. We put many ingredients in with the his drink. he tasted it and pretended that he died. From then on, his nickname was "Spirit". I am lucky to have 3 favorite brothers. Love you dearly Bob. Your new heavenly birth date, 3/6/2020. A celebration of his life.
