

Sean Martin Kardorff

August 19, 2013

Our precious boy Sean received his angels wings Monday morning. He went from his mother's arms to God's arms.

God sent us an angel, but God needed his angel back. We have been very blessed to have been Sean's mommy and daddy. Sean was a young boy full of energy, who ran around playing with his brothers. He loved to clean. If given the choice between cleaning and playing, he chose cleaning. Sean loved to take out the broom, mop, and bucket, and loved to wash dishes. He loved orange popsicles and butternut squash. If given the choice between butternut squash and ice cream, he would pick butternut squash. Sean was careful and cautious. He was so careful and cautious that when he would get to the end of the curb or the bed, he would turn around and slide himself down. Sean was such a people person, very friendly and outgoing. It was so amazing, people who didn't even know Sean, that would just meet him in passing were attracted to him. Sean made such an impact and impression on people in his short time on this earth. Sean loved to raise his eyebrows and had the most beautiful smile. Sean was always smiling. Even fighting his battle against cancer, he was still smiling. He could just walk into a room and smile and everything seemed to get better. Sean had the most beautiful blue eyes you ever saw, they were the color of the ocean. He is going to give someone the gift of sight. Someone will be able to see the world like Sean saw it. Sean died as peacefully and happily as he lived. Fly my angel fly.

Sean was preceded by his paternal grandparents Roderic and Mary Kardorff. He is survived by his father and mother, Roderic Kardorff and Wendy Guilbeau, and his brothers, Jason and Alex Kardorff. He is also survived by his maternal grandparents, Willis and Alice Guilbeau, and his aunts and uncles, and many cousins.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made for masses and for cancer research, which a foundation will be set up later.

“ We all remember the quiet days before the implants and the big smiles after but even more those big eyes & "EYEBROWS" being raised when asked to 'give eyebrows'. Sean was such a loving little guy. We are glad to have been a part of his life and yours.
